

ABSTRACT

A network billboard system supports an application program and a network of computing devices including a server, database, billboard computer and client computer. The system administers, delivers, and disseminates data files (e.g., advertisements) manually and/or automatically via the network and a publically accessible schedule or other triggering event to display data on a public structure (e.g., electronic billboard, projection system) or personal electronic device.